

WINTER SCHOOL IN PUBLIC ETHICS

ETHICS, PRIVACY AND INFORMATION

JANUARY 2023

Guest Speakers

Guillaume Beaulac, Deputy Director at Future of Work, Lead for Data and Experimentation, Global Affairs Canada, Government of Canada

Omar Bitar, Policy Advisor at the Treasury Board of Canada Secretariat, is currently working on the third review of the Directive on Automated Decision Making, Government of Canada

Étienne Brown, Assistant Professor of philosophy at San José State University in San José, California, where he teaches digital ethics to the aspiring software engineers of Silicon Valley. He is the author of Moral Judgement (Rowman & Littlefield, 2022) and the organizer of PhilMod.org, an online community of academic researchers and technology professionals interested in the philosophical implications of content moderation.

Noël Corriveau, Managing Director, Compliance Solutions at Prodago where his efforts are focused on building AI governance platforms and solutions. He is a senior lawyer that specializes in providing legal and ethical advice on the application of emerging technologies, such as artificial intelligence. Noël has gained extensive experience in both private and public sectors. In the public sector, he has worked as counsel with the Federal Department of Justice and was also appointed as Special Advisor on Artificial Intelligence to the Chief Information Officer of Canada. In the private sector, he has worked as senior counsel at INQ Data Law and served as a subject matter expert at Deloitte Canada's Omina AI where he advised clients both nationally and internationally on AI governance and best practices.

Emmanuelle Deault Bonin, Senior Director, Strategic and Digital policy at Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada, Government of Canada

Émilie Dionne, Adjunct Professor in the department of sociology, Faculty of Social Science, Université Laval. She is also a researcher at VITAM – Research Centre in Sustainable Health (Québec) and associate research member of OBVIA (Observatory of the societal impacts of Artificial Intelligence, Université Laval). Émilie is co-director of TIC & Health, one of the six research axis of the Quebec Research Network in Populational Health Studies (RRSPQ).

Jonathan Durand-Folco, Assistant Professor at the Élisabeth Bruyère School of Social Innovation at Saint Paul University, Ottawa. His research interests include participatory democracy, municipal politics, the commons and the ecological transition. He is the author of the book À nous la ville! Traité de municipalisme (Écosociété, 2017), co-author of Manuel pour changer le monde (Lux, 2020) and editor of Montréal en chantier: les défis d'une métropole pour le XXI^e siècle (Écosociété, 2021)

Isadora Hellegren Létourneau, Senior Policy Specialist Human Rights Online and Gender Equality – Independent advisor. Formerly at the Swedish International Development Cooperation Agency (SIDA)

Guillaume Miranda, Lead Analyst of Data Ethics, Statistics Canada, Government of Canada

Andréane Sabourin Laflamme, Professor of philosophy at Collège André-Laurendeau, in Montréal, Canada. She is a doctoral candidate in law at Université de Sherbrooke. She is the co-founding member of Len.IA (AI and Digital Ethics Lab). Andréane is a collegiate researcher at OBVIA (International Observatory on the Societal Impacts of AI and Digital Technology). Her current research areas are the normative function of ethics and law in AI governance, advanced training in AI ethics and digital citizenship.