International Conference: Rebellious Religion – Ethical and Political Reflections on the Work of Pier Paolo Pasolini

Ottawa, October 29, 2015 - The research program Critical Religion and Public Ethics (Faculty of Philosophy / School of Public Ethics) at Saint Paul University is proud to present the International Conference: Rebellious Religion – Ethical and Political Reflections on the Work of Pier Paolo Pasolini.

Forty years ago, on November 2, 1975, Pier Paolo Pasolini was brutally killed in a still unsolved murder. In his literary and cinematic work religion appears as a potential of radical criticism with respect to the existing society. What precisely is that emancipatory force? Is that force still present in contemporary religion? And is it present – or absent – in today's religious fundamentalist movements?

WHAT: Rebellious Religion – Ethical and Political Reflections on the Work of Pier Paolo Pasolini

WHEN: Wednesday, November 4th and Thursday, November 5th, 2015, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

WHERE: Saint Paul University, Laframboise Hall, Room 120
