

Diversity Fund Graduate Travel Award
(Information disponible seulement en Anglais)

The Society for Personality and Social Psychology has established a fund devoted to increasing diversity within personality and social psychology. As part of this initiative, eligible graduate students are invited to apply for travel awards to attend the SPSP annual conference.

Deadline: July 2019;

Amount: $500;

Eligibility Criteria:

- Members of SPSP at the time of the submission;
- Applicants must be enrolled in a graduate program with emphasis in social/personality psychology at the time of the convention;
- Applicants must be a member of an underrepresented group in social/personality psychology (these groups include, but are not limited to, ethnic and racial minorities; first-generation college students; lesbian, gay and bisexual students; transgender students; and students with a physical disability);
- Applicants cannot have previously won an SPSP Graduate Student Travel Award or an SPSP Diversity Fund Graduate Travel Award.

Application Process:

- Submit a current CV;
- Presentation abstract for a submitted conference presentation (poster, symposia or data blitz). This is not a requirement, but priority may be given to students presenting at the conference;
- A 25-word essay in which you describe your research interests, career goals, and how you would benefit from a Diversity Fund Graduate Student Travel Award.

For more information pertaining to this award and application process, please refer to the link below:

<http://www.spsp.org/awards/travel-awards/diversity-fund-graduate-travel-award>