

NewFound Prose Prize 2019
(Information disponible seulement en Anglais)

You know that long story of yours that wickedly exceeds the word counts for print journals? Or that micro-essay collection you've been slaving over that's still too short to publish as a book? These works deserve to exist in print. Now they have a home.

The NewFound Prose Prize is awarded annually to a chapbook-length work of exceptional fiction or creative nonfiction. The work may be in the form of a long story or essay or a collection of short pieces (60 pages max). Other than the page limit, the only formal requirement is that some aspect of the work must inform or explore how place shapes identity, imagination, and understanding.

Deadline: March 15th, 2019;

Amount: $500;

Application Process:

- The winner will receive a prize of $500 plus 25 copies of the published manuscript. The author will have the opportunity to purchase additional copies at a discount;
- The author will have the option to sign a royalties contract to sell the chapbook with NewFound;
- NewFound will design, print, and bind the chapbook. The cover will be decided in cooperation with the winning author;
- All finalists will be announced in April of the following year on the NewFound blog and social media channels;
- Due to the number of submissions, we cannot leave each manuscript personalized feedback. Submitters will receive acknowledgement of receipt and panel decision;
- $25 reading fee.
