

SOUL OF PEACE SCHOLARSHIP

(Information disponible seulement en Anglais)

The purpose of this scholarship is to support graduate research in/field application of psychology/pastoral care that advances understanding of, and applies a new lens onto, what lies at the core of our historic global dilemmas (e.g., power imbalances; “borders” and dimensions of cultural, racial, and religious identity; human rights and inalienable Rights). The research will identify developmental issues that, in being avoided, have arrested our hopes for global harmony, and must now be grown up.

Deadline: June 1st (of every year); Students are encouraged to apply when their research proposal has been accepted, and their research process begun. Groups can apply when their research/project has commenced and can offer preliminary qualitative evidence of meeting stated project objective.

Amount: $500

Eligibility Criteria: You are presently enrolled in a Master’s or a Doctoral level of studies in psychology or pastoral care at a recognized college or university and are progressing to the research phase of your program. You have completed at least 75% of your course work, have achieved excellence in your program standing, and you’ve honed your research question(s) in a way that integrates your personal sense of call, your advanced understanding of psychological and pastoral care principles, and global context.

Regarding the possibility of a group initiative, relevant general parameters remain; e.g., a clearly stated objective, 75% of planning completed, understanding the relationship between a sense of call with psychological and pastoral principles, and global context.

Amount and Awarding of Scholarship: The Scholarship is funded through sales from my book, Restoring Our World Soul. An amount of $500 per year will be awarded. Granting of monies will coincide with the actual commencement of the student’s/group’s research process.

A copy of the book Restoring Our World Soul will be made available to you.

To Apply: Forward to the mail or e-mail address below:

- a statement making a strong argument for how your research/field work can shed new light onto global relations and peace building, and why you are personally/collectively drawn to invest in this research/work;
- two reference letters, one from an academic source, the other from a person who knows your capacity to apply knowledge into real-time global context;
- your most recent academic record from graduate studies (only relevant for graduate student work).

Send all documents by mail to: Dr. Colleen Mac Dougall
101-2100 Ch. Georgeville,
Magog, Quebec
Canada J1X 7V6

You can also forward your documents by e-mail to: Dr. Colleen Mac Dougall soulcare@moderndigital.net