Although not everyone who applies to a doctoral program has a specific research project in mind (it often is determined through the period of coursework), please respond to the best of your ability. Whatever information you can offer will greatly facilitate our providing you with the proper direction. Please include the following elements in your response. Use the front and back of this form, and add an additional sheet if necessary.

1. Your intended area of research (Please specify as much as possible.)
2. Your reasons for choosing this area of research.
3. The preparation, if any, (reading, courses, writing) you have done in this area.
4. Your particular thesis topic, if you already have one in mind.
5. Your reasons for choosing to do doctoral work at St. Paul University.
6. Any further information which you find pertinent.
